

Population Europe Webinar

Refugees in Europe

Their Human Capital, Values, and Attitudes Exclusive findings from a new study on Austria

with Population Europe Experts from the Wittgenstein Centre for Demography and Global Human Capital (IIASA, VID / ÖAW, WU)

Dr Isabella Buber-Ennser
and
Dr Judith Kohlenberger

Thursday, 6 October 2016
14:00 – 15:00 Brussels time

Register Now: <http://bit.ly/2cvLz0M>

(The necessary log-in data for the webinar will be sent to you in a separate eMail closer to the date of the webinar. For technical requirements please see adobe.com.)

In summer and fall of 2015, thousands of people seeking refuge from wars and other humanitarian crises arrived in Europe. Their arrival has thoroughly shaken Europe's political landscape, yet there has been no scientific assessment of the backgrounds these refugees bring with them.

Until now. Dr Isabella Buber-Ennser and Dr Judith Kohlenberger together with several esteemed colleagues, have conducted a survey to gather information on refugees' attitudes and motivations, skills and intentions. The first results of the Displaced Persons in Austria Survey (DiPAS) have just been published in PLOS ONE.

We invite you to discuss these findings and their implications for society, policy, and the economy together with Dr Buber-Ennser and Dr Kohlenberger in an exclusive Population Europe webinar, during which the authors will field questions from other experts as well as present the study itself.

Contact: Dr Harald Wilkoszewski, press@population-europe.eu